

SUPPLEMENTAL INVESTIGATIVE NARRATIVE

On Tuesday, March 24, 2026, a Temporary Custody Notice (TCN) was issued to the child's mother, Kellieann Goseyun, and the identified father, Treyton Satter, in response to the immediate safety concerns and substantiated risk of harm to the infant.

On the same date, CPS executed a Child Placement Agreement for temporary placement of the infant with paternal relatives, Kara Satter and Tory Satter. The placement was determined to be appropriate based on the need to ensure the child's immediate safety, maintain family connection, and provide a stable caregiving environment pending further investigation.

This action was taken due to the absence of sufficient protective factors within the parents' care and the medical determination that the infant sustained non-accidental injuries consistent with establishing a substantial and imminent risk of harm.

The placement remains subject to ongoing CPS assessment, including evaluation of the relatives' suitability, continued medical monitoring of the infant, and coordination with law enforcement as part of the joint investigation.

The issuance of the Temporary Custody Notice and subsequent placement were necessary to immediately mitigate the risk of further harm to the child.
